SENIOR STAFFORD AT HIS OLD HOME.

The late train from San Francisco brought to this city very unexpectedly Senator and Mrs. Stanford.

It is their first visit to their old home, around which must cluster to them so many tender memories, for more than four years. Of course it is known to all people that affairs of State and business and profound and sustained engagement in the noble work of erecting the Leland Stanford Jr. University, have so absorbed the Senator's time that it has been impossible for him to return, even for a day, of late years to the scenes of his earlier manhood in the Capital city.

This people, however, well understand that Governor Stanford's affection for Sacramento has never suffered diminution.

It was here that his lamented son, to whom he was so intensely attached, was born. It was here that the Governor made the beginning of those labors that resulted in such great achievements as to give them national character and make his name world-famous. It was here that he began his political career. It was in this city that his wife, who has, by her unparalleled beneficence, related herself to the State as the wife of the first Governor of California chose from this city. Probably nowhere else place clings tender and sweeter memories for these two citizens of the State than Sacramento.

It is to be regretted that Senator Stanford and his wife could not stay one day in a city, the people of which would be glad to show more enthusiastically than is now possible the highest esteem in which they hold them as pioneer Sacramentans and representative Californians in whom they take honest pride. However, though the arrival of the Senator was without notice, it is gratifying to know that last evening, late as was the hour, public-spirited citizens arranged for such public welcome to be extended to-day, as will testify in a simple manner to the sincerity in which the distinguished visitors are held by their local neighbors. Elsewhere will be found local mention of the arrangements that have been made by the Mayor, President of the State Board of Agriculture, the President of the Board of Education, the Brigade Commander of the Fourth Brigade, N. G. C., according to which opportunity will be afforded the people of the city to pay their respects to Senator Stanford and wife at their residence prior to being escorted to the Pavilion, to view the exhibits made of State production. In a sense, therefore, these public benefactors, whose names and whose deeds of benefactions are so intimately related to the better part of one day. We are quite certain that the simplest sincere greeting, for which no special preparation was possible, will more gratify the guests than formal, ceremonious and long premeditated arrangements.

In every section of the State the subject of the restoration of Sutter's Fort is receiving attention, and the universal judgment is that it is shameful that the old relic should be permitted to disappear.

The right thing to do would be first to ascertain what the land can be purchased for, and get the price paid for the land.

Next, for the Native Sons and the Pioneers to open lists for a fund subscription.

Then, when there is sufficient guaranteed to secure the plat and proceed, to erect upon the site a memorial hall to be surrounded, as nearly as may be, by works marking the lines of the old fort. In this hall should be gathered all possible relics of the pioneer era, which should be free to the inspection of the people at all times.

STATE FAIR.

FOUR SPLENDID RUNNING RACES AT

THE PARK.

The Attendance Increasing—Colusa's

Fine Exhibit—Conclusion of Stock Entries.

There were many fresh arrivals of visitors yesterday to attend the fair, and a great crowd was present at the Park, while the usual number of people were present at the Pavilion during the day. At night the crowd at the latter place was very great, and must have been an awesome sight to the officials of the State Board, who have labored so hard to make the fair a financial success. The visitors last evening thronged not only the main floor but the galleries and the annex they were entertained with choice music by the respective bands—the First Artillery in the former, and the Musear Band in the latter. The programme of these was carefully selected, and the special features were warmly applauded.

To-day some of the committees will be judging between the rival exhibitors in the various departments will not be concluded until Friday next.

The committee on home-made bread, has already completed its labors, and blue ribbons award the productions of the following named ladies:

Domestic Bread—Mrs. W. H.

Wright.

Graham Bread—Mrs. E. E. Lambert.

Soda Bread—Mrs. M. L. Bassett.

Domestic Corn Bread—Maggie Poach.

Attorney's Business College exhibits as usual a magnificent display of pen and pencil work, and the College is indorsed by the leading business men of California, and is placing a large number of young men and women on responsible and lucrative positions.

On its Advisory Board are found the following named gentlemen: George C. Penning, ex-Governor of California; M. M.

Estes, Napa City; Clay W. Taylor, Reddick, San Francisco; J. H. H. H. H. H. H.

tendent of Public Instruction; C. R. Grit-ter, Cashier Bank of Colusa; Judge Charles

C. Lott, Oroville; Dr. C. E. Stone, Maryville; E. M. Preston, President Citizens

Bank, Colusa; D. D. Stephens, President Bank of Woodland; Charles A.

Sumner, San Francisco; Joseph Steffen,

President Board of Trade, B. F.

Langford, President Bank of Lodi.

The attendance at the college has doubled within the last year, and the Principal has been obliged to enlarge his force of teachers and to add new furniture to meet the demands of the rapidly increasing patronage.

The Capital Furniture Company, owners of the manufacturing enterprises of the city, have an exhibit in the Pavilion, though they have not yet in the main, yet equally as meritorious. The display is in the south gallery, and consists of bedroom furniture, and a large number of cases, case, etc. The articles shown are made of California wood. The furniture is handsome, and of good quality, and can be had at our own door, made by home in-terprise. The company regret that they are not able to make as big a showing at the fair as they would like, but they are making the best of the matter, and are grapes (of all varieties), peaches, pears, apples, etc.

In the center rises a pyramid of apples, bearing jars of beautiful and luscious preserved fruits of various kinds. Some of the pears and apples there shown are of wonderful growth, and wonderful quality.

The Colusa raisins are as fine as any on exhibition, showing that Colusa possesses possibilities in that line that may bring her into the front rank of raisin-producing counties.

There are also shown various white and red wines, honey, flour, canned goods, walnuts, almonds, peaches, jellies, pickles, sick coconuts, etc. The public are particularly interested in the display of cotton plants shown, bearing large and completely filled bolls. Persons familiar with cotton-growing state that it would be difficult to find finer cotton on any of the plantations of the Southern States.

Colusa is also rich in the variety and quality of her native and cultivated woods.

There is shown in the exhibition large blocks of black walnut, also specimens of yellow and sugar pine, fir, mahogany, ash, black oak, white oak, live oak, dogwood, sugar pine, dagger pine, elder, choke-cherry, cherry, alder, white willow, pepper-wood, maple, and many other varieties.

The mineral resources of the county are represented by gold and silver-bearing ore, cinnabar, sandstone, flint, etc.

Another department of the exhibit is devoted to samples of the various mineral and medicinal waters found within the limits of this county, of various resorts in the foothill portion of the county these springs abound in great numbers. The Wilbur Hot Sulphur Springs have been known for upwards of thirty years, and Cooks and Founts Springs are also widely known as health resorts. Samples of the water from these various springs are on exhibition, and give positive proof of their quality to all who are familiar with mineral waters. The day water comes from these springs will have a national reputation, and Colusa will become one of the
